THE BEST WIFE.

BY J. G. LONDEN.

'Tis not the one puffed up in lace,
That always wears the prettiest face;
Nor her, who wears the smallest hand
Around her guilded waist.

'Tis not her who snuffs and frets,
At everything in life she gets;
If you would lead a happy life,
Never take this one to wife.

But choose a chubby little hand,
That holds the kitchen at command.
Such an one you'll never rue,
This is the best, young man, for you.

CHAPTER XVII

March to James River—Building Roads to the Pontoon—Visiting Gunboats—Move to Bermuda Hundred—March to Front of Petersburg—Believe the Colored Troops—March to the Left—Fighting in 2nd Corps—March to Ream's Station—Return left Wing of Army—Fourth of July—New Recruits—March to Washington—Pursuit of Early's Army to the Valley—Return to Washington—Paid off and supplied for a new Campaign—March to Harper's Ferry—Sheridan in Command.

Our march from Cold Harbor, which we left June 12th, to the James river, was a leisurely and rather pleasant one. Halting just long enough on the morning of the 13th to cook our breakfast, we moved on and crossed the Chickahominy, and went into camp for the night.—Moved on next day to near Charles City C. H., and halted a short time near an old tree, carefully preserved, as the one under which Pocahontas rescued Smith from execution, a story we all believed in very firmly when we were young.

In the morning we moved down to the James river, to what is called Auld's Landing, where a pontoon bridge was thrown across the stream. This was the longest pontoon we had ever seen, and probably the longest used during the war.

Our first duty here was to build a road from the solid river bank, across the intervening marsh along the margin of the river, to the water's edge, to where the bridge rested.

We found here several of our Gunboats, and the Ram Atlanta, which had been captured from the rebels, and which was visited by a number of our officers. We also got some clothing and numerous luxuries, from the fleet.

On the 16th of June we embarked on transports, having finished our road, and were taken up the river, and landed at Bermuda Hundred, where we joined Butler's army. The residue of our forces and trains crossing over the Pontoon bridge.

Our boat-ride to Bermuda Hundred was a most magnificent one, the weather being cool, and the moon shining brightly. We had a dance on the upper deck of the steamer, on the way up, but there being no ladies to assist in the amusement, it did not succeed quite so well as it might. Still we managed to get through the night with considerable enjoyment. It was as much better than marching in the hot sun over dusty roads.

After reporting to Gen. Butler, we moved out to the front, and went into camp. The day was intensely hot. We moved our camp in the evening, but did nothing of any moment.

At midnight we moved out to the front again, and, at daylight of the 18th of June, we passed out of the fortifications with orders to attack the enemy who were on the railroad in our front, the Richmond and Petersburg railroad.

The order to attack was countermanded, and we were halted and marched back to camp. We have heard considerable firing over towards Petersburg, and hear that the colored troops are engaged there, and have captured some of the rebel works in front of Petersburg.

On Sunday, June 19th, we moved to the front of Petersburg, crossing the Appomattox, and relieving the colored troops who were engaged yesterday.

Our Adjutant to-day preferred charges against Lt. Col. Hickman, our commanding officer, for misbehavior in the presence of the enemy, and he was placed in arrest, and Major Wakefield assumed the command of the regiment.—We remained here on picket along the Appomattox river, until the evening of June 21st, when we marched towards our left, to the Weldon railroad, or near it, and endeavored to form a junction with the 5th corps.

We built a line of pits in a thick woods, and then, moving, built another line.—Our friends to our right, the 148th Pa., and some other troops of their Division, got into an engagement, and suffered severe losses. The enemy having, under cover of the woods, gained their flank and rear. We endeavored to assist them, but failed to get up in time to be of any material service. The enemy having reformed almost as rapidly as they had moved in.

On the 23d we continued to fortify, and in the evening were moved to the left to resist an apprehended attack upon our flanks. The enemy having begun to drive in our pickets, we built a rifle pit along the entire front of our brigade in twenty minutes time, and were prepared to receive them. They did not attack, however, and at dark we moved back to our former position.

We perfected our camp here, and remained in it until Wednesday the 29th of June, when we marched, at 4 p. m., in the direction of Ream's Station, on the Weldon Railroad. We got there at ten o'clock at night, and commenced at once to destroy the Railroad.

On the next day we continued to tear up the road, and burn the ties and warp the rails, and also built a rifle pit along the road, to cover the station. Our friends of the 148th made use of our works afterwards, when they got into a fight at the Station, but we never had occasion to make use of them ourselves.

On June 30th we moved back to near the left wing of our army, and went into camp, where we remained next day, and on the following day moved again to our right, and encamped in the edge of a woods. Water was very scarce in this region, and the weather had become dry, and excessively hot. The mending wells in the camps, finding water within fifteen to twenty feet of the surface, but of inferior quality.

We had no demonstration in camp the 4th day of July, beyond some attempts to get up a more than ordinarily extensive dinner. In fact, matters did not look very bright in our view of affairs on this Fourth of July. Moving our camp once more, about half a mile, into a hot, dusty field, we remained quietly in camp, doing only the routine duties of guard and picket. Col Hickman was tried by Court Martial, but the finding of the Court was not made public, and he remained in arrest.

We received one hundred recruits, while awaiting here, drafted men, from Carlisle, Penn's rendezvous, who together with our returning recovered sick and wounded again began to fill our ranks, and make us look like a regiment once more.

On July 9th we moved at ten o'clock at night, to City Point, to embark for Washington city, which was threatened by Early.

We arrived at City Point July 10th, about 8 o'clock, a. m., and remaining all day, and the next night, awaiting transportation. The entire corps was embarking for Washington.

On the morning of the 11th we got off on the Steamer Emilie, not only one of the last to leave, but a slow boat. We arrived at Fort Monroe about 9 o'clock, and remained there about an hour. The night was very stormy, and we made but little progress up the bay. At times the lower deck was flooded with water. We did not reach the mouth of the Potomac till next morning about 8 o'clock, and landed at Seventh Street Wharf, at 10 o'clock at night. The rest of our brigade had been out to Fort Stevens, and had been engaged with the enemy.

We learned that the rebels were within four miles of Penn's Avenue, on the Seventh Street road, and were ordered to move out Seventh street at once. Our brigade was now commanded by Col. Edwards, of the 37th Massachusetts, which, with the 2nd Rhode Island and 82nd Penn's, was now attached to our brigade. We moved off the boat, up to Penn's Avenue, and, after a brief halt, on to the front. We met the President in a carriage, returning from the Fort, where he had been watching the operations. The people of the city were greatly excited over their situation, and nearly all the employees of the Government, and able-bodied citizens, were out, armed, garrisoning the fortifications.

On the 13th of July we moved out by Tenallytown and Rockville, in pursuit of Earley's forces, who had commenced to retreat. Encamping near the river at night, we resumed our march next morning, and arrived at Poolesville, Maryland, next day. The enemy had crossed the Potomac here, our advance skirmishing with their rear guard as we came up. We went into camp and remained here next day. During the afternoon we hanged a deserter from the 62nd New York, in front of our camp.—He had gone to the rebels, and returned to our camps in front of Petersburg, in rebel citizens dress, to play spy for them. Having been detected, he was tried, and sentenced to be hanged, and the sentence executed this day.

On the 16th of July we crossed the Potomac, and marched to near Leesburg, and then, in the evening, moved some miles west, and went into camp, where we remained next day. Our Cavalry were skirmishing some all day.

On the 18th we moved on through Snicker's Gap, to the banks of the Shenandoah, and found a brigade of Hunter's forces, the 8th corps, across the river, on the level plain, while we encamped on the bluffs on the east side.—The rebels attacked them, and, though we tried to assist them by our batteries from the high bluffs, they were driven back across the river, with loss. We could see it all, but could not get over to aid them.

We remained quiet until the 20th, when we forded the Shenandoah, and moved out to near Berrysville, and halted. It rained heavily during the afternoon, and in the evening we commenced our march back towards Washington, fording the river about midnight, and marching all night. After a halt to cook and eat breakfast, we moved on, and encamped near Leesburg in the evening, where we remained all night.—Marched next day over our old route of 1862, near to Lewinsville, and encamped.

Next day we marched by Lewinsville, and our old Camp Griffin, to the Chain Bridge, and went into camp near Tenallytown. Our old camps, where we passed our first soldier winter, were turned into corn and hay fields, being farmed by the negroes, for the Government, and did not look much like the country we had left.

After our arrival at Tenallytown, we were paid off, and supplies furnished to prepare us for a return to Petersburg.

On the 26th of July, however, we were moved off up through Maryland again, and marched steadily, every day, until we arrived at Frederick city.

July 28th we took the Harper's Ferry road, and, encamping at Jefferson the first night, we moved to Harper's Ferry, and crossed the river next day, and went into camp at Bolivar Heights.

On the 29th we re-crossed the river, and marched to Peterville, and next day moved back again to Frederick city.—Gen. Sheridan now arrived and relieved Gen. Wright of command, and we remained at Frederick city until August 3d, when we moved down to the mouth of the Monocacy, and remained there until August 6th, when we moved on to Harper's Ferry, and beyond Bolivar Heights, where we encamped on Sunday, August 7th.

On the 10th the corps moved on, and our regiment was sent back to Bolivar, and encamped separate from the other troops, on account of the fact that smallpox had appeared in some of our companies. The sick were removed and provided for in carefully guarded Hospitals, and the regiment used to guard the trains and workmen on the railroad.

Interesting Incident.

"While living at Dunham," says Dr. Warwic, "I took a walk one evening in Lord Stanford's Park. On reaching a pond in which fish were kept ready for use, I observed a fine pike of some six pounds weight. At my approaching he darted away like an arrow. In his hurry, he knocked his head against an iron hook fastened in a post in the water, fracturing his skull, and injuring the optic nerve on one side of his head. He appeared to suffer terrible pain; he plunged into the mud, floundered hither and thither, and at last, leaping out of the water, fell on the bank. On examination, a portion of the brain was seen protruding from the fractured skull.

"This I carefully restored to its place, making use of a small toothpick to raise the splinters of the broken bone. The fish remained quiet during the operation; when it was over he plunged into the pond. At first, his sufferings appeared to be relieved; but in the course of a few minutes he began rushing right and left till he again leaped out of the water.

"I called the keeper, and, with his assistance, applied a bandage to the fracture. That done we restored him to the pond, and left him to his fate. Next morning, as soon as I reached the waters edge, the pike swam to meet me quite close to the bank, and laid his head upon my feet. I thought this an extraordinary proceeding. Without further delay, I examined the wound, and found it healing nicely. I then strolled, for some time, by the side of the pond. The fish swam after me, followed my steps, and turning as I turned.

"The following day I brought a few young friends with me to see the fish.—He swan towards me as before. Little by little he became so tame as to come at my whistle, and eat out of my hand. With other persons, he, on the contrary, continued as shy and wild as ever."

WET THE ROPES.—When the Egyptian Obelisk in front of St. Peter's, at Rome, was being raised and placed upon the pedestal, the engineer had not calculated accurately the stretching of the ropes.—By this oversight, when the immense obelisk had nearly reached its position, it was found that it lacked several inches of the height and there it swung; while no human effort could place it on the pedestal. The engineer was so mortified in the presence of the vast multitude that he drew a pistol and was about to kill himself. An English sailor happened to be present, and seeing the difficulty, cried out, "Wet the ropes!" An engine was provided, the ropes were saturated, and slowly, but surely, the great mass rose and settled in its position.—Then went up a shout from the great multitude. What a dilemma! And yet how simple the remedy! Without understanding the philosophy of the thing, that sailor suggested the remedy. Human skill and foresight are not always sufficient to accomplish a great purpose. The common mind sometimes reaches a practical good where philosophers are at their wits end. How true this is in the highest sphere of human agency!

LABOR.—There is much truth in the statement that none so little enjoy life, and are such burden to themselves, as those who do nothing. The active only have the true relish of life. He who knows not what it is to labor, knows not what it is to enjoy. Recreation is only enjoyable as it unbends us. The idle know nothing of it. It is exertion that renders rest delightful, and sleep sweet and undisturbed. That the happiness of life depends on the regular prosecution of some laudable purpose, or lawful calling, which engages, helps and enlivens all of our powers, let those bear witness who, after spending years in active usefulness, retire to enjoy themselves; they can find leisure a burden rather than a pleasure.

An Example for Boys.

A notice of a death in last week's Mercury brings again to mind a circumstance that happened over twenty five years ago. I was on an electioneering excursion in Jo Davies county, Illinois, night overtaking me, and being afraid of getting into a mineral hole, I stopped at the first place offering, which proved to be the log house of a charcoal burner. The good wife busied herself in getting my supper whilst I took care of my horse. In the morning, after breakfast, (the man having gone to the coal pit,) I asked for my bill, but the landlady refused to receive anything; she sent her boy to the shed with me to get my horse, and I concluded, as she would take no pay, to give the boy a dollar. The boy was less than half grown, and wore a pair of tow pants, notched about two inches deep by way around the bottom, a shirt of the same material sewed to his pants, barefoot, a hat through the crown of which his hair protruded, and everything, including face, hands and feet, the color a charcoal burner's son would be, if not freshly washed. The following day this lad, without any change of dress, and carrying an earthen jug minus the handle, by a string tied around its neck, came into my office, the dollar in hand, saying he wished me to buy him something with it, as if it was known he had it, it would be taken from him to fill the jug next time.

I looked at him, thinking he would want a hat or shoes, and asked him what I should get with it. He answered that he wanted a slate, pencil and an arithmetic, but did not know whether his money would buy all. I went out, got what he wished, and, rolling up some paper and pens with them, gave them to him.

Many times after I noticed him come into my office when a trial was progressing, slip his jug under the seat, cross his legs in front to keep it out of sight, and listen for hours to the lawyers. I lost sight of him for a season, until my son, coming home from Mount Morris Seminary, informed me he was there at school. When next I heard from him was after I came to California; he was a partner of a lawyer I knew in Galena. The next I noticed, was in an Illinois paper, that he was a Douglass Elector; then, after, that he had gone South in the army.

Afterwards saw a dispatch from him that we had taken Vicksburg, signed by him as Adjutant General, he being then on Grant's staff. I now see by your last week's paper, that the Secretary of War is dead. And this Secretary of War was the boy with the tow-cloth breeches.—Who can fail to love a country whose workings allow the most obscure to attain its highest positions? So young, too! What might he not have reached, had his life been prolonged to a ripe old age? One object in noting this, was for the encouragement of the young. Boys, if this boy with opportunities certainly less than most of you, could accomplish so much, why not you?

A STORY FOR SWEARERS.—A gentleman once heard a laboring man swear dreadfully in the presence of a number of his companions. He told him it was a cowardly thing to swear so in company. The man said he was not afraid to swear at any time, or any place.

"I'll give you ten dollars," said the gentleman, "if you will go into the village church yard, to-night at 12 o'clock, and swear the same oaths which you have uttered here, when you are alone with your God."

"Agreed," said the man, "'tis an easy way of earning ten dollars."

"Well, you come to me to-morrow and say you have done it, and the money is yours."

The time passed on, midnight came. The man went to the grave yard. It was a night of pitchy darkness. As he entered the graveyard, not a sound was heard; all was still as death. Then the gentleman's words, "Alone with God," come over him with a wonderful power. The thought of the wickedness he had committed, and what he came there to do, darted through his mind like a flash of lightning. He trembled at his folly—afraid to take another step, he fell on his knees, and instead of the dreadful oaths he had come to utter, the earnest cry went up—"God be merciful to me a sinner!"

The next day he went to the gentleman and thanked him for what he had done, and said he had resolved not to swear another oath as long as he lived.

Washington Irving and Lewis Gaylord Clark, while walking near Sleepy Hollow, were overtaken by a storm. There was great thundering and lightning, and Mr. Irving took refuge under a tree, asking his companion:

"Why don't you come in here and be as comfortably housed as I am?"

What of the Future?

Under the above caption, the Altoona Vindicator, from which we have copied so liberally of late, comes out with another article, in which no mercy is shown to the Democratic leaders. Our readers, we trust, will bear with us for occupying our space in part with these extracts. We do it for the purpose, first, of showing our readers that all we stated before and since the election, of the Democratic party and its principles are true to the letter; and 2d, to prove that these extracts virtually admit that the Republican party is, and has been for the last twelve years, the only party true to Liberty, the Constitution, PROGRESS and REFORM. These extracts prove what we have always said that the Democratic party has been out of power both in the State and the Nation for the last ten or twelve years, for the reason that its leaders proved false to the PROTECTION of American Labor; false to the true Jeffersonian doctrine of "Equal and exact justice to all men," and to add to their disgrace and infamy, they proved false to their country in the hour of her greatest peril, and tramp led under their unhallowed feet the glorious old flag—the E Pluribus Unum of the American people.

We hope these Editors will continue to write, and show up the corruption and wickedness of the Democratic leaders. So long as they do so, we will give place to their choice sayings as evidence of the purity, greatness, and glorious record of the Republican party. But hear the Vindicator:

"The course of events for the past eight years must convince any man "who has given political history a "moment's attention, that the men "who have framed our platforms, and "nominated our candidate, and shaped "ed the general policy of the party, "were utterly incompetent to the task. "They were not alive to the spirit of "the times. They lived in the dead "past, and thoroughly entrenched in "their somnolent positions, allowed "their resolute enemies to capture the "public ear." * * *

While we admit that the resolute Republicans captured the "public ear," and the result has proven, the public confidence as well, yet it was only done when the leaders of the Democratic party North, such men as Bigler, Woodward, Clymer, Pendleton, Seymour, and others, with nearly two-thirds of the rank and file deserted the teachings of the fathers and founders of the Republic, and embraced the slavery dogmas and sanctioned the treasonable action of the traitors of the South. The Republican party has gained the public ear and the public heart, by its loyalty to the Government, and by its honest administration of the public Treasury, and just so long as it remains true to its past history, and the trusts reposed in it by the people of the United States, so long it will continue to conquer. The cry of Radicalism as used by the Vindicator, Watchman, and other Democratic journals, has failed to frighten the people from the support of the Republican party. In spite of their arguments in favor of conservatism and against negro suffrage, the intelligent people continued to trust the great party of PROGRESS, and spurned and repudiated the Democratic party. This is the fact that does now most appear to trouble the Editor of the Vindicator. Hear him on negro suffrage, conservatism, and the payment of the National debt:

"It is a fact known to all who are "open to conviction, that conserva "tism never wins. Place a party in the "position of a defender of ancient "traditions and practices which have "passed away, and you seal the death "warrant of that party unless it "speedily retrieves its error. PRO "GRESS is the watchword, and if the "people are not properly led, they "will follow any leader, no matter "how infamous his purposes, if he "but plant upon his banner the "watchwords, PROGRESS AND IM "PROVEMENT. Our opponents by "their own cunning and the stupidity "of our leaders, have placed us in "the position of conservatives. If "we would win in the future, we must "change our policy and our chief "tains. When you hear a man en "deavoring to engraft into the Demo "cratic platform, resolution in opposition to negro suffrage and the payment of the bonds of the United States, "put it down that that man is either "wofully blind or in league with our "enemies. These issues will not win; "and the sooner we acknowledge it "this, the better will it be for our "prospects in the future. This is plain "talk and may be impalatable to the "aristocratic few, who disdain to "breathe the air polluted by the com "mon herd, but it is the TRUTH, and "we do the party a service by telling "it. When we assume our ancient "and rightful position as the party "of true and healthful PROGRESS, then "and not until then, will we regain "that power and influence which our "own indifference has rested from "us."

If the Editor of the Vindicator be an honest man, why not come out at once, and acknowledge the whole truth. Why not declare to the people that the Republican is the true and only party in the United States, in favor of Progress and Liberty, and advise his readers and friends to attach themselves to it as the only sure or safe way to dispose of their old "fossil" treasonable leaders. Be a man, Mr. Campbell. Let us have no half-way measures. If you have renounced conservatism and repudiation, and embraced the doctrine of negro suffrage, why not honestly say that you, too, have been wrong for the last eight years, and give the credit to the men who have earned it?

But the Vindicator will do no such thing. He has been too long under the leadership of the fossils. The facts he produces should open the eyes of the masses of the people and convince them that their only political hope and safety rest with the great Republican party.

More Testimony---A Sick Party.

In another article we have referred to the arguments of the Altoona Vindicator, against the leaders of the Democratic party. Other papers are beginning to talk in about the same manner. We quote the following from the last number of the Democratic Watchman:

"One thing is certain—the Democ "racy must retire some of its old lead "ers—must place them in a condition "of honorable do-nothingness, and "yield itself to the leadership of the "young, the brave, powerful and gi "gantic intellects of which it possesses "so many. The days of old-fogyism "have passed away, and the times de "mand a directorship competent to "grasp the vital issues of the present. "The result of the late election shows "the dire necessity to which we have "been reduced."

We ask the Democrats of Centre county if this is not a square admission of all we have ever said or written in regard to the leaders of the Democratic party? It is said that "an honest confession is good for the soul," may we not yet hope for the full conversion of Mr. Meek, and the redemption of Centre county from Democratic misrule?

The Mauch Chunk Democrat, edited by Wm. P. Furey, sicker still than Meek, writes an able article acknowledging that the course of the Democratic party has been a continuous series of blunders and recommends as their only safety from total annihilation, the calling of a State Convention at the earliest possible day, to be controlled by the "young and active, the self-reliant and vigorous Democracy." It is really amusing to hear an Editor talk of the vigorous Democracy. The party has really been dead for the last three years; but like the Irishman's tortoise which kept walking round after its head had been cut off, it was not sensible of it until its last thrashing by Gov. Geary.

The Pittsburg Post quotes the article from the Mauch Chunk Democrat, and while it admits the defunct condition, as well as the corruption of the Democratic leaders, it does not see that the calling of a Convention can resurrect the headless baste now senseless of its death. The Post says, by way of commentary:

"We don't see the necessity of a "convention to act as pall bearer for "the corpse of the defunct candidate. "The Democrat, like a burnt child, "dreads the fire, and in advance de "nounces the "respectable, but emi "nently worthless class of fossils who "are galvanized into life at each con "vention." They were in abundance "in Harrisburg during the Demo "cratic Convention, and all for Pack "er. They were generally recommend "ed to the more inexperienced and "youthful delegates, as war horses. "They knew all about it, their sagacity and political knowledge could "not be neglected with safety.

"One war horse pledged Luzerne "for six thousand if the "Pride of "the Valley" was nominated; the "Tenth Legion would double its nat "al majority, and Philadelphia was cer "tain for ten thousand. It might be "considered uncharitable to say these "men did not care a baubee whether "the Democratic party triumphed or "not; so they were brought near the "money bags of Packer. It is no com "fort to know they were disappointed, and that they neither understood "the man nor the necessities of the "hour. They proved their utter in "capacity to lead or advise, but which "er the disastrous issue will be ac "cepted as a warning remains to be "seen."

HON. F. CARROL BREWSTER, of Philadelphia, has been appointed by Gov. Geary, Attorney General of the Commonwealth, in place of Hon. Benjamin H. Brewster. This is a most excellent appointment and will be received with the heartiest approbation throughout the State. Mr. Brewster was chosen one of the Judges of the Common Pleas in Philadelphia in '66, and in his short service on the Bench has won a most enviable reputation as a jurist. Entirely master of his profession—scrupulously honest and impartial in his decisions—remarkable for his courtesy and kindness to all who appeared in his court, and most industrious and energetic in performing his arduous duties, he was regarded by every one as a model judge.—His present appointment can add nothing to his well established reputation, but it will redound to the benefit of the Commonwealth. Gov. Geary's action in this appointment deserves the highest commendation.

The Philadelphia Age and several other Democratic papers talk of contesting the election of Gov. Geary.—Well, let them try it. We are as anxious to have the fraudulent vote thrown out as they can be. We have always contended that we had a fair majority of 20,000 in the State, and if it were not for the frauds of the Democrats, the returns would show it. Now, let us have the contest by all means, hurry it up just as fast as you can.

CONGRESS will meet in four weeks from next Monday, for the long session.

What the Syllabus Is.

Many persons are at a loss to know why it is that the coming Œcumenical Council has excited so much political as well as religious agitation in Europe, and still more why its proceedings or results should interest or effect us in the United States.

This we propose briefly to show.—The Council—the highest authority of the Roman Catholic Church—has been called for a definite purpose, viz: To pass on several matters of dogma and to take action on "The Syllabus."—This now famous paper, which must be adopted or rejected as a rule of faith and action, is a systematic and sweeping condemnation of everything which may be comprehended in the modern idea of civil liberty—the entire civilization of our time.

Its history best explains it. Five years ago—in December 1863—the Pope issued an Encyclical Letter, taking a very despondent view of the condition, political, social and religious, of the entire world. Accompanying this paper was the Syllabus, a schedule, in military parlance, of charges and specifications. It contained ten general charges, each supported by just exactly eight specified errors, or "damnable heresies." The somewhat emphatic language is Pio Nono's, and not that of intemperate journalist. The general charges are labelled materialism, ritualism, pantheism, socialism, etc.—The specifications are more precise.—As the arrangement of the whole paper, however, savors more of mediæval conceit than sound logic, we shall drop the ecclesiastical terminology and the forced arrangement, and group together some of the salient ideas and facts of modern life, which are directly and equivocally pronounced to be damnable and sinful, and contrary to faith.

The freedom of the press.

Bible societies.

Liberal clerical associations.

The independence of Church and State.

The civil contract of marriage as opposed to the governmental view.

Education outside of the control of the Roman Catholic Church.

The objects and functions of legislation.

The relations of clergy and laity.

The modern idea of sound government and the relations of the governed to the governing.

The views held by nearly all educated men as to the functions and limits of human reason; and

The objects, powers, and results of scientific investigation.

As will be seen at a glance the indictment of the Syllabus covers the whole structure of modern society. In short, the Pope arraigns the life of the nineteenth century, and proposes to try it before a tribunal of his own calling.

As is usual in courts-martial and ecclesiastical tribunals the case is already prejudged. There can be no doubt about the verdict. The Syllabus itself is a sentence which assumes conviction.

All the Council is called for is to affirm it.

Whether right or wrong, the Pope, representing, or claiming to represent the dominant religion in Europe, has pronounced the nineteenth century—its civil, political, and social structure—a failure; and hence comes the throe. His remedy is not to strive forward in faith and hope for something better, but to go back. He proposes to amend the whole by striking out the nineteenth century and inserting the tenth. If this could only be done, the Jeremaid of the Syllabus would give way to a triumphant Te Deum.

It is this that has started Europe. It is this that has called out Archbishop Darboy, Montalembert, and Hyacinthe in France, Dollinger in Germany; Haynald in Hungary; Manning in England; the circular by the Bavarian government to the Catholic powers of the Continent; the refusal of Napoleon to allow the French bishops to publish the Syllabus at all; the protest of the Theological Faculty of Munich; the convention of the nineteen bishops at Fulda, and set the press of Europe teeming with pamphlets and essays.

So general is the protest, both by the Catholic governments and the Catholic clergy of Europe, against the expediency of the Papal policy, that it is estimated that the Bishops of Spain and Austria alone will come into the Council prepared to give his Holiness a united support—the only two delegations that can be counted on.

And well may Europe pause before the project of Pio Nono, who seems to have the desperate ambition, if not the brain and discretion, of Hildebrand. It means for her the giving up of history; the surrender of the struggle—moral, political, and physical—of centuries; the blood and doubts and prayers of generations. It means historical involution instead of historical development.

In the light of modern history, this Syllabus proclaims civil and religious revolution. It is in letter and spirit an inflammatory and incendiary document. The catholic monarchs and rulers of Europe must give up their acquired rights and privileges, and lay down their crowns, even as Henry IV., of Germany, and John of England, of unblessed memory, laid down theirs. The Catholic voters of Europe and of the world must lay down their votes and civil franchises—the modern conception and exercise of which are generally damnable under the sixth head of the Syllabus.

Take, for instance, England, whose popular and constitutional history is best known in this country, and see what the triumph of the Syllabus involves for her. She must blot out from her history Cromwell and the Protectorate. She must strike from the roll of her children a Milton, a Hamnden—a Russell—a Sidney—a Vane. She must unlearn the bloody lessons which an offended God taught in the heavy judgement of the Stuarts. She must roll back the revolution of 1688 and repeal at once and forever the reform bills of the present century.

For the Church, the consequences are hardly less disastrous. The position of the Ultramontanes is an absolute separation between the Church and the life of the times as hopelessly conflicting and irreconcilable. Father Hyacinthe eloquently states the danger and fallacy of this position: "I protest against the divorce, as impious as it is insensate, sought to be effected between the Church, which is our eternal mother, and the society of the nineteenth century, of which we are the temporal children, and toward which we have also duties and regards."

This Syllabus is the point around which will centre the fires of the conflicting Œcumenical forces. In its eight damnable heresies are gathered up all the issues of our time. If they cannot be mastered and moulded by the Church, as in times past—if the historical progress of civilization can no longer be reconciled with the progress or standstill of the Church, then the Roman Catholic Church, through the voice of the Council, must take the responsibility of saying so, and great will be the crash that will follow. And if this is the conclusion of the learned prelates who assemble in December, we may be sure they will assert it boldly, and like men. To the Roman Catholic Church must always be given the great credit of speaking out clearly and boldly, meeting every question fairly and without evasion of word or act. It never fights with rose water resolutions and annually inconsequential conventions.

At all events we stand on the threshold of a solemn and momentous crisis in history. The Roman Catholic Church numbers, according to the best estimates, within its fold one hundred and ninety-five millions of souls, more than one half of all Christendom. Five millions of them are citizens of this country—a home thought—and this Council must decide whether all of them shall array themselves implacably against the reigning order of modern society, modern life, and modern thought, or not.

Five years ago the civil liberty of the nation was imperilled by the slaveholders' rebellion. To day a general attack is made on civil liberty throughout all the world.

Grant's Administration.

EX SENATOR WADE addressed a large Republican meeting at Akron, Ohio, a few days since. In the course of his speech he said;

"Mr Pendleton says you are ground down with the debt, and oppressed so that you can hardly breathe. But every dollar of the debt must be paid, though you are to be relieved from taxation. How, brother Pendleton, can you relieve the people from taxation, and yet pay off the debt? If you can tell us that, God knows I will be with you. I don't see how it can be done; but I do say, to dishonor the debt, and thus wrong those who lent their credit to the Government in the time of its greatest necessity, would be one of the most shameful acts men could do. Why, sirs, 15 years will wipe out every dollar of this great debt, if other Administrations do as well as the Administration of Gen. Grant has done so far. I believe that, under God the Administration is performing its duties with an honesty of purpose, and a determination to do the right, to save every dollar that can be saved, and apply it to the liquidation of the debt; and that is my idea of financiering. It is a kind of homely way; but I know of none better, and Gen. Grant's Administration has entered upon it with triumphant success, and ought to be sustained.

I admit that I would liked to have voted for a tried statesman when I voted for him. I did not know how firmly he held the great principles of the Republican party, and I would part with my life quicker than I would part with those principles to-day. I have never yet swerved one single inch from them, and never will. I feared that Gen. Grant might not hold to those principles so firmly and safely as I did, because he had occupied no position which had called upon him to bring them out. I would have chosen a man, if I could have had my own way, who had been tried by fire, and in whom we know there was no shrinkage. But, sirs, General Grant has been tried. You see his dealings in the South; you see his appointments in the agents of the Government, and you find them all of the glorious stripe you and I would want to put in. We know, now, his heart is steeped in the Republican doctrines. I am glad to see [illegible] I found a doubt.

The Democracy are still shouting Grant for being connected with the late gold speculation. They take care however, never to tell their readers that it was by the President's order that Boutwell made the sale of the gold that crushed the ring and brought the price of gold below its former figures. If the President was interested it isn't likely he would have destroyed his own investments. The story don't just look right.

The State Vote

The official returns show that in the late election Governor Geary received 290,552 votes, and that Judge Williams received 291,374. Judge Packer received 285,956 votes, and Mr Pershing 282,575. Governor Geary's majority in the State is 4,596 and Judge Williams, majority 8,799.

From a mere glance at the respective majorities of the candidates, it would seem apparent that Governor Geary had polled several thousand less than his party vote, or that Judge Williams had greatly exceeded it. This however, is erroneous, as a single glance at the aggregate will show.—If Judge Williams' vote in this State is to be taken as the measure of the party strength, then Governor Geary run just 726 votes behind his party strength, if the Governor's vote is to be taken as a party test, Judge Williams runs but that number ahead of his ticket. In the aggregate of the votes cast excluding Allegheny, Governor Geary's vote is 356 more than that of Judge Williams. In Allegheny county, Judge Williams received 1,082 votes more than Governor Geary, but how much of this was due to his own popularity at home, or how much local causes that may have reduced Governor Geary's majority, it is impossible to determine from the returns alone. It would not be doing our candidate for Supreme Judge any more credit than he justly deserves to claim that his increased vote at his home was due to his own personal popularity. Two years ago Judge Sharswood's popularity in Philadelphia gave the State to the Democracy, and it may be that Judge William's reputation where he has so long been a Judge may have given the honor of leading his ticket in his own county.

These figures should at once silence those who, taking merely a glance at the majorities of the candidates, hasten to announce that Governor Geary run several thousand behind the vote of the party. The fact that he was only 726 behind Judge Williams in the State is perhaps the strongest evidence of his own personal strength. It must be remembered that his defeat was the sole object of the Democracy. For the Judgeship they cared little. Their entire efforts were directed to secure the Executive power of the State. For this they were willing to buy votes or trade for them. Their candidate was one who never figured in political life and was consequently without any of the enmities or jealousies of defeated competitors. He had never been Governor, and therefore had disappointed and embittered no aspirants for official position or favor. On the other hand Gov. Geary's official acts for three years were open to the criticisms, perversion, and misrepresentations of his opponents. When we consider how industriously and carefully they searched his official record for material to injure him, and how they distorted and perverted every thing connected with his administration, and it is remarkable that his vote in the State should be almost equal to that of Judge Williams who was entirely removed from the complications of politicians, whose personal strength was conceded by all parties, and whose competitor failed to receive within 3400 votes of his party strength. Gov. Geary's vote in the State, under all the surroundings of the campaign, is a higher personal compliment than was even his decided majority in 1866. The figures will certainly bear close scrutiny.

THE Cincinnati Commercial, which cannot be accused of any blind fealty to the Republican party, commenting on the result of the Ohio campaign, says: Pendleton is beaten by a larger majority than Thurman was. The fact is, there is a manifest decline in the popular terror of negro suffrage, and a growth in knowledge that national credit and a sound currency concern the poor no less than the rich, and are more important even to the laborer than to the capitalist.

How does Asa Packer take his defeat? Can't some enterprising reporter go up to Mauch Chunk and interview him awhile? Does he still walk to the cars and refuse to let fellows carry his carpet bag for him? Are any of his photographs for sale? Is he still the pride of the valley? Do let us have something about Mr. Packer. It would be a relief even to know that he still claimed the State.

Hereafter, or from the 12th inst., the business will be conducted in the firm name of
D. M. WAGNER AND SON.

JOB WORK.—Posters, Circulars, Bill Heads, Cards, Paper Books, Job Work of all kinds, neatly executed at the REPUBLICAN OFFICE, at reasonable rates.

NOTICE TO BUILDERS.—Howell, Gilliland & Co., keep constantly on hand, the Ardell Shingles, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, at the lowest price for cash or produce.

RAW MONEY.—If you want posters, circulars, bill heads, cards, paper books, first-class job work plain or fancy, call at the REPUBLICAN office. All work done at Philadelphia prices.

FOR SALE.—Persons wishing to buy a good mare should call, without delay, upon H. H. Yarnell, near Hecksville, this county. See advertisement.

WE invite the attention of our readers to the professional card of our energetic and talented young friend, John F. Potter, who is now prepared, and will attend promptly to all business entrusted to his care.

GROCERY.—Levi A. Miller & Co., who purchased the Grocery formerly owned by Capt. M. Runkle, having added a larger stock of new and fresh groceries, are now doing a capital business. The tobacco store is carried on in this same room.

TEARING down bills or covering them with other bills, or in any way defacing them, is a misdemeanor punishable upon conviction, with imprisonment. Numerous complaints are made that bills carefully put in proper places are soon torn down by thoughtless boys. When a man spends his money in expensive posters to advertise his business, he should be protected in his right to place them before the public, so long as he violates no individual right.

HOME AGAIN.—It is with pleasure we chronicle the return of W. P. Macmanus, Esq., to his friends and home. He has been Engineering in Missouri and Tennessee for the past three years. He has learned the character of the Southern people very well, and gives a glowing and interesting account of the financial and political situation in that portion of our country. Mr. Macmanus is a young man of excellent moral character, a first-class Engineer, and a good lawyer as well. We welcome him home.

RE-OPENED.—Loeb, May & Loeb, having purchased, as we stated last week, the brick building recently erected by our enterprising citizen, J. B. Butts, have re-opened their store, and are receiving daily visits from their old customers. At present, they occupy the room on the second floor, the carpenters being busily engaged in re-fitting and shelving the splendid room on the first floor.

They gave away or, rather, washed out, presented to the poor and needy of our town and vicinity, all their damaged goods. This is an enterprising [illegible] should be well patronized.

[illegible] about 10 o'clock, a. m., Elmora Stone, about 12 years of age, son of Capt. [illegible] Brown and Rebecca Stone, was [illegible] by a horse belonging to Mr. [illegible] his neck having been broken, and the skull fractured. Mr. Aaron Hall was taking a bath, for Mr. Christian Buck, and after he had undressed, turned to go home, driving at a brisk trot, the little boy asked permission to ride. Permission being granted, Elmore made a spring for the ladders but, missing his hold, was thrown under the wagon, feet foremost, the hind wheel passing over his forehead and neck. Another warning for all little boys to be careful, and for all parents to keep their children off the streets.

ADVERTISE.—Every business man, who wants to increase his trade, should advertise. Advertising brings the merchant's goods to the constant notice of the customer. Advertising enables the business man of small capital to turn his stock quickly and often. Advertising enables the rich merchant to do business on less capital. Advertising builds up trade rapidly, establishes a permanent trade, and keeps it active. Advertising makes fortunes for men in business, who otherwise would fail in their undertakings. Advertising should be constant and judicious. Advertising in a newspaper pays, as a rule, in proportion to the number of readers it reaches. Advertise in the REPUBLICAN; it reaches the most intelligent and prosperous families. Advertising makes up for the disadvantages of a poorly located business stand. The one has customers constantly at the door, whilst advertising draws customers right to the place.

AN OLD CITIZEN GONE.—We clip the following notice of the death of Benj. Bennett from the Meadville Daily Republican, of the 25th ultimo:

We regret to announce the death of Benjamin Bennett, Esq., who died at his residence, in this city, on Saturday afternoon, the 23d instant. He was born in Pittsburgh, on the 11th of April 1790, and was, consequently, in the eightieth year of his age. He came to this county about the year 1810, and remained until 1824, when he removed with his family to Bellefonte, where he was actively engaged in business of different kinds. He returned to this county in 1852 and settled on his farm near the aqueduct in Fairfield township. In 1858 he was elected Commissioner, which position he filled with credit and fidelity. Increasing years began to press heavily upon him, and he relinquished his farm, and, for several years, he has resided in Meadville, an invalid, confined most of the time to his room or bed.

Mr. Bennett was the father of [illegible] all his acquaintance, as a kind and [illegible] friend. His cheerfulness and [illegible] in his temperament, he endeared himself to all who came within his circle. He had outlived most of those with whom he started in life, and at a ripe old age, has gone down to the grave, respected as a citizen, and beloved as a parent.

LOCK HAVEN HOT AGAIN.—On Sunday night last, or rather, early Monday morning, a fire was discovered in a room over Ryndor's music store, at the junction of Main street and Clinton avenue. The building being frame and in a frame block, the flames spread rapidly, and were not stayed until they had totally destroyed Mr. Ryndor's music store, his tenant house, in the rear thereof, Mr. Hopkin's art gallery, and the millinery store of Miss Drexel. Mr. Ryndor was absent, but his stock—pianos, organs, music, &c.—was saved; also the furniture of the building in the rear, the occupant also being absent. Mr. Hopkin's building was built by a good tenant, and was insured. Mr. Ryndor, 'tis said, had no insurance, except on his stock, which was saved. His loss is very heavy. The work of an incendiary again, there having been no fire in Ryndor's building for some time.

LOOK HERE, READER, we do not wish to tell you that Consumption can be cured when the lungs are half consumed, nor that Dr. Wonderful, or any other fellow has discovered a remedy that will make men live forever, and leave death to play for want of work. No, you have heard enough of that, and we do not wonder that you have by this time, become disgusted with it. But when we tell you that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will positively cure the worst case of Catarrh, we only assert that which thousands can testify to. Try it and you will be convinced.

Sent by mail for sixty cents. Address R. V. PIERCE, M. D. Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by most Druggists everywhere.

THE POISONED TONGUE.—The snake's poison is in its teeth; but there is something quite as dangerous, says an exchange, and much more common in communities, which has its poison in its tongue. Indeed, your chances of escape from a serpent are much greater. The worst snakes usually glide away, in fear, at the approach of man, unless disturbed or attacked. But this creature, whose poison lurks in his tongue, attacks without provocation, and follows up its victim with untiring perseverance. We will tell you his name, so you will always be able to shun him. He is called a Slanderer. He poisons worse than a serpent. Often his venom strikes to the life of a whole family, or neighborhood, destroying all peace and confidence. We have known this evil tongue to work mischief in the hearts of a whole community, destroying the sweetest friendships, and causing life long bitterness. Ah! beware of this poisoned tongue. The evil speaker is most abhorrent in the sight of our Heavenly Father. They who do such things have no inheritance in the "many mansions," where all is joy, and love, and blessedness.

WEDNESDAY MORNING Nov. 3. '69.

Don't Mortgage The Farm.

We'll have to mortgage the farm!
Of this there is little doubt,
And if we fail to redeem,
The sheriff will turn us out.
And all because we are not content
To earn our money before 'tis spent;
For lawyers seldom allow delay,
And we have not the wherewith to pay.
Our pride is sure to result in shame,
And we have nobody else to blame.
You certainly ought to know,
If matters continue so,
We'll have to mortgage the farm.
Chorus—The farm, the farm,
The dear old farm,
We'll have to mortgage the farm.

Suppose we'll mortgage the farm,
'Twill last but a little while,
We can not hope to succeed
In keeping up city style:
The day devoted to formal calls,
The night consumed in attending balls;
For jewelled rings and imported hair,
And trails sufficient to sweep a square,
And silks and satins and laces fine,
Without the wealth of a golden mine,
Are surely enough to show,
If matters continue so,
We'll have to mortgage the farm.

How can we mortgage the farm,
And with it that holy place
Where love delights to call,
The charms of each silent face?
The golden curls of a darling child,
Her lustrous eyes and her features mild;
And one who fell in the battle flame,
Where lillies bloom and the willow waves
About the quiet of household graves.
Ah! gloomy indeed the day,
Should we be compelled to say,
We'll have to mortgage the farm!

Does a Good Cow Cost More than a Poor One.

When will people learn to know better than to assert that it costs no more to keep a good cow than a poor one? The thing is being harped and re harped constantly. Now, the thing at first glance is sufficient to convince any intelligent man that this cannot be the case. Do twenty pounds of butter require no more nutritive matters than ten? You might as well say that it dosn't contain more. The cow that doubles her butter in a year, giving 400 instead of 200 pounds, does she require no more food to make the extra 200 pounds? According to the theory afloat, this is so.—It might as well be said 400 pounds require no more; and that a cow out of milk will put on no more flesh (fat) than one giving milk, which we know is not the case. Equally well do we know that the more butter that is made, the more food or nourishment is required. This thing has often enough been tested. We have knowledge of this ourselves—practical thorough.

A good cow requires more pasture and more hay, depend upon that.—You do not see the difference in pasture—you do not note and estimate in summer; neither do you in winter, because your cow is dry, or gives but little milk. Besides, promiscuous feeding will prevent you from telling the difference.

The most profit in purchasing a cow (common bred) is to buy one that has been neglected. Here is a chance for improvement, while at the same time the profit on the increased feed is realized, for it must forever be an axiom in stock raising that our profits are on the products that are consumed—the feed that is converted into flesh, fat, butter and cheese.—You can not get these, as we have said, without just their equivalent in grain pasture, etc.

By improving your ordinary cow, you increase the profit on her and her product.—She will sell for more, and you will realize more from her milk.

Push the fodder, then: pass all through you animals that you can. This will give them growth, fat and milk—what you are after if you are a true farmer.—Journal of Agriculture.

How Much.—How much better is your farm than it was a year ago? How much better are your implements? How much more lovely have you made your home by the planting of trees and shrubs? How much have you added to the value of your property by the planting of orchard trees and small fruits? How much better is your stock of horses, sheep or cattle? How much of error have you discovered in your mode of treatment of the different crops you have grown? How much have you learned from you neighbors, from your agricultural paper, from your experience in relation to your farm operations? How much have you done to aid your wife and daughters in their household duties, by furnishing them with improved household utensils, at the better location or arrangement of wells, cisterns, walks, wood piles, cellars and dairy room? How much of charity and kindness have you exercised? How much better husband, father, brother, man are you than you were one year ago? Now is the time to reflect upon all these things.—[Prairie Farmer.

An individual of much practical experience says that green elder, deposited in and about mows of hay or grain, will prove an effectual preventive against the depredations of rats and mice. These animals are frequently very destructive in their ravages, and if a remedy so simple and easy of attainment be efficacious, it deserves to be known and remembered by all. We have long known that the stalks of the common mullen will drive rats from their haunts.

Faults in Building.

The American builder enumerates these faults in planing and erecting houses.

"1st. Cramping a house down to the smallest possible space, so as to make more "yard room," which will never be used.

"2d. Making no calculation as to the size of rooms or the location of fuaniture.

"3d. Building chimneys by guess, so that one has to have a dozen lengths of useless stove pipe, or else place his stoves in the most inconvenient locations.

"4th. Arranging windows and doors so that one opens against the other, or in the very spot to be occupied by a piece of furniture, or so placing them that no fresh air can get through the house, even though the whole should be open.

"5th. Providing no means of ventilating rooms, save by open doors or windows; hence all the impure air which is generated by breathing, cooking, and fermentation, as it is rarified, rises to the top of the room, and there remains to breed discomfort, disease, and death.

"6th. Nailing sheathing to the outside of the studding, and clapboards (or siding) close to the outside of that, leaving small or no air chambers between them; and, as in nine cases out of ten, green materials for each covering have been used, they shrink and rot, soon making a honey comb of the shell, though plastered with paint and cement.

"7th. Laying the lower floor directly on joints, or, at best, lining it with culls, full of knots and shakes which are bnt little better than nothing, and, as a consequence, the floor is always cold and uncomfortable.

"8th. In finishing, first laying the bases, palasters, and casings (perhaps of green lumber), and then lathing and plastering up to them, so that when they dry, large orifices are left to let in cold and moisture.

"9th. Letting his work out, as a whole, trusting to the honesty of the contractor to do it, without having plans or specifications properly drawn, and without any one to oversee, criticise, or direct it."

The way to Blanket Horses.

But few persons comparatively understand how to apply a blanket to a horse to prevent him from contracting a cold. We frequently see the blanket folded double and across the rump and part of the animal's back, leaving those parts of the body which need protection entirely exposed to the cold.

Those parts of the body of a horse which surround the lungs require the benefit of a blanket in preference to flanks and rump. When we are exposed to a current of cold air, to guard against any injury from contracting cold, we shield our shoulders, neck, chest and back. If these parts be protected, the lower part of the body will endure a degree of cold far more intense, without, any injury to the body, than if the lungs were not kept warm with suitable covering. The same thing holds good in the protection of horses. The blanket should cover the neck, withers, and shoulders, and be brought around the breast and buttoned or buckled together as closely as a man buttons his overcoat when about to face a driving storm. Let the lungs of a horse be well protected with a heavy blanket and he will seldom contract cold, even if the hindmost parts of his body are not covered. Many of our best teamsters protect the breasts of their horses by a piece of cloth about tow feet square, hanging down from the lower end of the collar.

This is an excellent practice in cold weather, as the most important part of the animal is constantly sheltered from the cold wind, especially when traveling toward a strong current.—The forward end of horse blankets should be made to fit as closely around the breast of a horse as our garments fit our bodies. Most horses take cold as readily as men, if not blanketed while standing after exercising sufficiently to produce perspiration. So long as the horse is kept in motion, there is little danger of his suffering from cold; but allow him to stand for a few minutes without a blanket to protect his shoulders and lungs, and he will take cold sooner than men.—[Ex.

Notice Your Fowls.—A somewhat noted English writer says:—"The more notice there is taken of fowls, we believe, the better they will be. In a natural state they would, no doubt, lay a batch or two of eggs in a season, hatch them, and consider the end of egg production fulfilled.—In a domesticated state, we wish them to rear the advisable number of broods, and in addition, to continue to lay eggs as many months in the year as is commensurate with their well-doing; therefore, the further we remove our fowls from the wild state to domestication—that is, the tamer we can make them, the better for ourselves and their happiness. Notice them, therefore, the young broods and the old fowls, and let the children notice them too (not handle them, for chickens should never be caught unnecessarily), and your fowls will repay good feeding by doing good service."

Any farmer in the county who has suggestions to make, upon any product he has raised, will benefit the farming community, by having them published in this column of our paper.

"GRANDFATHERS' STOVE."

Our grandfather's stove, what a funny old thing,
So deep, so wide and so tall;
Now the people would say, who are stylish and gay,
"It was only a hole in the wall."

It matters not what, it was pleasant to see
When night's mantle was flung over all;
Grandfather take down his good book and read
By the light from the hole in the wall.

As the sturdy young men rolled in the great logs,
They would laugh at each wintry squall,
Whilst grandma would sit on her old chair and knit
By the light from the whole in the wall.

The girls then wore home spun, and so did their beaux's,
For pride was a principle small;
And courting was done and hearts have been won
By the light from the hole in the wall.

The neighbors were friendly wherever they'd meet,
With a word of true kindness for all;
And joy was complete to hear voices so sweet
Ring round that old hole in the wall

In those days we know, folks cared not for show,
Of improvements knew nothing at all;
But 'twas really no joke, when great clouds of smoke
Rushed out from the hole in the wall.

But those days are now o'er, we shall know them no more,
And all those old fashions have flown;
Whilst the solemn and gay are coming each day
To purchase the famous "Old Home."

Coming not only in couples, but in scores, as hundreds of good and wise men and women have done before, to look upon this magnificent stove, which is acknowledged to be the best cooking stove of the age. Remember the place,

SEWING MACHINES.

A MERICAN BUTTON HOLE OVER SEAMING AND SEWING MACHINE COMBINED.

MEDAL AWARDED AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION, 1867.

In directing attention to the celebrated COMBINATION BUTTON HOLE AND SEWING MACHINE, we feel fully warranted in claiming for it unquestionable superiority over all others as a Family Machine.—The Simplicity, Ease and Certainty with which it operates, as well as the uniform excellence of its work, certainly place it far in advance of any other similar invention of the age.

It is also the cheapest, intrinsically, as well as the best, since it is really two machines combined in one, (by a simple and beautiful mechanical arrangement never before accomplished by human ingenuity,) making either the Lock Stitch or Button Hole Stitch, as occasion may require. It is, at the same time, simple in construction, comparatively noiseless, easily understood, and, in a word, it combines with those advantages exclusively its own the most desirable qualities of all others, for it not only does every variety of sewing in a SUPERIOR MANNER, but in addition OVERSEAMS splendidly and makes beautiful BUTTON and EYELET HOLES in all fabrics. This is far beyond the capacity of any other machine.

The SPLENDID MECHANISM of this Machine, and the superior skill workmanship and materials employed in its construction, are a guarantee of accuracy, strength and durability, and enable the company and its agents to Warrant Every Machine they sell to give entire satisfaction.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN ON THE MACHINE GRATUITOUSLY.

Lessons may be taken if desired with a view to test the Machine, or to become better acquainted with it before deciding to purchase. Samples of work will be furnished upon application at

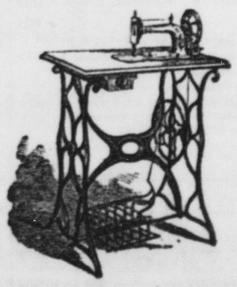
SEWING MACHINE.

THE SINGER SEWING MACHINE.



Among sewing machines, those made by the Singer Manufacturing Company, rank with the highest. Their manufacturing machines, have long been known as the best for manufacturing purposes But within the past few years, they have given special attention to the production of a destined to win much favor in the HOUSEHOLD.

The machine which they now offer is quiet light-running, simple, fast, noiseless. Its accessories for

HEMMING, BRAIDING, BINDING,
QUILTING, TUCKING, CORDING,
FELLING, GATHERING,

are simple and easily understood. Its delicate though enduring and tireless muscles of iron and steel, do all the work noiselessly, better, and few will deny, "Faster than hand can do it." They urge those wishing to purchase a machine, to examine all the other manufactures before buying, as it will, for itself, overcome all the objections to the other machines that can be brought against it.
